

One afternoon while watching TV with my 11 yr. old, The Superstation was showing a movie, (dinner and a movie). The host and his co-host were talking about a retarded girl in the movie, only he didn't say retarded, he said mentally challenged, and made a comment, that you're not supposed to say retarded any more, because the correct term was "mentally challenged". But then the host turned around and made a comment about his co-hosts, big ass. Why are they allowed to say the word ass, but not retarded? That is ridiculous! One minute they are talking about using politically correct words, and the next he is using a curse word in the middle of the day.
